

GET TO KNOW BROOKE

Even as a child, Brooke thought the human body was miraculous, so a nursing career was the obvious choice. Working as director of health services in an assisted living facility sparked her interest in seniors, and with AgeRight she has the opportunity to encourage and empower them every day. By getting to know her patients well and performing routine assessments, she's able to catch problems early, so effective interventions can be made. "I see myself as a guide on their health care journey," she says, "whether it's recovery after an acute incident, managing chronic illness or simply maintaining health through the aging process."

“My greatest reward is seeing patients recover and return home, and I love watching them get excited about making lifestyle changes that will improve their health and quality of life”

BROOKE AT-A-GLANCE:

- More than ten years of health care experience as a nurse and Family Nurse Practitioner (FNP)
- Master of Science in Nursing degree from Simmons University
- Enjoys Line dancing, hiking, skiing, paddleboarding, traveling, and exploring the local foodie scene
- Has performed volunteer relief medical work in Haiti

