

GET TO KNOW HEATHER

Jennifer returned home from a medical mission trip to rural Nicaragua inspired to expand her education and make a more direct difference in the world. It was a life-changing experience, and opened her eyes to the needs of underserved communities and the geriatric population. Before becoming a physician assistant, she served as a physical therapist assistant in senior care and home settings. Now with AgeRight, she helps manage chronic and acute illnesses in skilled nursing and assisted living facilities. “I really enjoy getting to know the patients, and discovering the specialness in each one,” she says.

“My greatest reward is being able to make even the smallest difference in someone’s life”

DR. DRYDEN AT-A-GLANCE:

- More than ten years Physician Assistant experience
- Physician Assistant certification from Red Rocks College, and Master of Medical Science (MMS) degree from St. Francis University
- Nearly 20 years experience as physical therapist assistant in long-term care facilities and home care
- Outside of work, enjoys international travel and romping in nature, including skiing, hiking and kayaking

